Old Falls Movies

June 28th—Beauty & the Beast

Disney's classic takes on a new form, with a widened fairy tale and an all-star cast. A young prince, imprisoned in the form of a beast, can be freed only by true love. What may be his only opportunity arrives when he meets Belle, the only human girl to ever visit the castle since his being turned into a beast.

July 12th—The Emoji(表情) Movie

The Emoji Movie unlocks a secret world inside your smartphone. Hidden within the messaging app is Textopolis, a city where all your favorite emojis live with only one facial expression except Gene who has multiple expressions. Determined to become "normal" like the other emojis, Gene asks Hi-5 and Jailbreak to help through the apps on the phone to find the Code that will fix him.

July 19th—Jumanji: Welcome to the Jungle

In a new Jumanji adventure, four kids discover an old video game and are drawn into the game's jungle setting, becoming the adult avatars(化身). To beat the game and return to the real world alive, they'll have to find a map and change the way they think about themselves—or they'll be stuck in the game forever.

August 9th—Peter Rabbit

Peter Rabbit, his three sisters and their cousin Benjamin enjoy troubling Mr. McGregor in his vegetable garden until he dies. When one of Mr. McGregor's relatives moves in, he finds much more than he bargained for. What follows is a battle of wills between the new Mr. McGregor and the rabbits. However, something happens and his feelings towards them begin to change.

B

Violette Childe, 67, is a dining companion who helps serve patients lunches. The role was introduced ten years ago by a dietitian concerning that some patients were not eating their meals.

"Many of our patients are elderly and can be confused by the noisy, busy environment of the hospital and so won't focus on eating," explains Yvonne Donglas-Morris, head of volunteering, who oversees the activities of all 528 of the trusty volunteers. "Staff are busy with the clinical side of things, so the dining companions were introduced. They will assist the patients and encourage them to eat."

Violette, a retired library manager, has been helping out for six years. "It makes me feel a bit more complete," she says simply. "Helping with the meals frees up the nurses to get on with other things. I believe in being a part of the community and this hospital is part of my community."

Another key role is played by the discharge volunteers, who offer support to the elderly, especially those aged 70 and over—leaving hospital to return to an empty home. The team has a budget of £10 per person and will pop to the shops and buy milk, bread and a meal to tide them over for the first few hours. They then call the patients regularly, for as long as they need, to check how they are getting on and if they need extra support.

The volunteers in Kingston work from a dedicated office—a small room in one of the buildings on the hospital grounds, where a Christmas tree decorated with baubles (小饰物) bearing the faces of volunteers sits in the corner. “All the volunteers come and gather here, it gets very busy at times,” smiles Nicola Hutin, 67, a discharge support volunteer. A mother of two, and grandmother of four, she was a membership coordinator (协调员) for a trade association until she retired, and has since volunteered at the hospital one morning a week for 18 months.

- () 4. What can we learn about dining companions?
- A. Their working conditions are noisy.
 - B. They are great assistants for doctors.
 - C. They often make patients more nervous.
 - D. The occupation existed more than ten years ago.
- () 5. What does Violette think of her work?
- A. She finds it tiring and boring.
 - B. She finds it easy to complete her work.
 - C. She believes it gives her a sense of belonging.
 - D. She believes helping patients with meals is to free up the community.
- () 6. What does a discharge volunteer do for the patients?
- A. Raise money for the elderly.
 - B. Pay a visit to them at home.
 - C. Buy daily necessities for them.
 - D. Ring to check their health condition.
- () 7. Which of the following can best describe the theme of the text?
- A. It is never too old to learn.
 - B. Many hands make light work.
 - C. Health is better than wealth.
 - D. God helps those who help themselves.

C

Going back to school can be an anxious time for many students. But one institution in Texas is doing its part to make sure middle schoolers are returning refreshed and inspired to learn.

Through a process called the “bathroom inspiration project”, teachers and administrators at Warren Middle School, spent their summer beautifying the school’s restrooms by painting motivational murals (壁画) on each of the stalls (小隔间). Forming messages like “Your mistakes don’t define you” and “Scatter (撒播) kindness”, the brightly colored words are exactly what a young student needs to see when having a rough day—or any school day for that matter. And now that classes are officially in session, people are already noticing a positive impact.

Since posting photos of upgrades to the school in July, Principal Joshua Garcia says that the alterations have aroused a great response.

“Students have been talking about the murals from the moment the pictures had been posted. Some even took the time to find a reason to come up to the campus to see the murals,” he says. “I think what makes this small little action so valuable is that it has set the tone for our campus.”

And not only is that important to students, parents, and fellow staff, but it is also vital for the school’s new principal, who is trying to gain the trust of the community during a time in which trust is so necessary for schools.

“Being new to the campus, I think the parents were able to see how much I value their children and have their best interest at heart,” Garcia continues. “I have had many parents tell me how they can just feel a difference in the campus climate and how much they are enjoying seeing their children wanting to come here. These murals have put trust back in the campus and its teachers, and by doing so we are able to build a culture in which our students want to be here and learn.”

- () 8. What has happened at Warren Middle School?
- A. Painting has become popular among most students.

- B. Some students have suffered great anxiety at school.
- C. Its toilets have been beautified with inspiring words.
- D. Motivational murals have been made in each classroom.

- ()9. What does the underlined word “alterations” in Paragraph 3 probably mean?
- A. Rules.
 - B. Arguments.
 - C. Changes.
 - D. Opportunities.
- ()10. What’s students and parents’ attitude toward those murals?
- A. Negative.
 - B. Ambiguous.
 - C. Uninterested.
 - D. Supportive.
- ()11. What does Garcia intend to do according to the text?
- A. Reduce increasing anxiety.
 - B. Build an artistic atmosphere.
 - C. Create a trusting environment.
 - D. Introduce a new culture to society.

D

Scientists in Western Australia claim to have made a new discovery—they have found gold in the leaves and twigs of trees. The researchers believe that the trees suck up the gold from deep underground, over 30 metres down. The discovery has been described as the first of its kind in the world. Australian gold exploration companies are pleased because it will make finding gold cheaper. Rather than drilling deep holes to find gold, they have more ways to examine tree leaves and branches. There is only a tiny amount of gold in the leaves. It would take 500 trees to make one gold ring. The gold is found using a special X-ray machine owned by an Australian government agency. A pure X-ray and a powerful microscope scan the leaves and branches.

The claim that this is the first time that gold particles(微粒) have been found in living material might not be true, though. Ancient Chinese wisdom understood the connection between plants and the precious stones and minerals underneath them. They used plant life to find minerals and that was thousands of years ago. In the Zhou Dynasty, it was written in a book that a certain plant grew only near deposits of gold. Over the next 2,000 years, Chinese people wrote about different plants and how they grew, and showed where minerals and precious stones such as jade, copper, lead, silver and gold were.

Even more importantly, in the 1000s, Su Song described how copper, gold, silver, lead and tin were observed and taken from certain plants. These were amazing scientific discoveries. Meanwhile, this knowledge was unknown in the rest of the world until about 1600. This was when a British man realised that oak trees grew larger and greener where there was alum(明矾) in the ground. Maybe ancient Chinese has more knowledge to teach modern scientists.

- ()12. What can we know from Paragraph 1?
- A. 500 dead trees can make one gold ring.
 - B. The trees can absorb the gold from deep underground.
 - C. Scientist have found gold 30 meters below underground.
 - D. The companies find it hard to find gold.
- ()13. How do scientists find gold in the leaves?
- A. By observing the leaves carefully.
 - B. By drilling deep holes.
 - C. By using a special X-ray.
 - D. By referring to ancient books.
- ()14. Who first discovered that there was connection between plants and minerals?
- A. Ancient Chinese people.
 - B. Su Song.
 - C. Australian scientists.
 - D. A British man.
- ()15. What is the purpose of the last paragraph?
- A. To introduce two great scientists in ancient times.
 - B. To provide more evidence to support the writer’s opinion.
 - C. To show how ancient people got gold from certain plants.
 - D. To prove that ancient Chinese has more knowledge than modern scientists.

How to Get Rid of a Cold Naturally Fast

Although a cold usually goes away on its own within 4-7 days, you can ease your symptoms to feel better faster. You can get rid of a cold both naturally and fast by clearing your nasal passages (鼻腔) with non-medical options. 16. _____. However, if you experience symptoms like shortness of breath, wheezing or fever or your symptoms don't improve, see your doctor immediately.

● Clear Your Nasal Passages

Blow your nose (擤鼻涕) correctly. While it's important to blow your nose while you have a cold, don't blow too explosively. The pressure from blowing hard can impact your ears, giving you an earache on top of your cold. Be sure to blow gently, and only as often as necessary. 17. _____.

● Help Your Body Feel Better Faster

Drinking plenty of warm fluids makes you feel better faster and relieves cold symptoms such as a runny nose, cough, sneezing, and sore throat.

Consume vitamin C, which can help strengthen your immune system. Citrus fruits, red and green peppers, kiwifruit, spinach, and other raw fruits and vegetables are good sources of vitamin C.

18. _____. Try to take plenty of naps during the day, since having a cold can make you feel run-down and you need to keep up your strength.

● 19. _____

See your doctor immediately if you have shortness of breath or wheezing. Any time you're having trouble breathing, it's an emergency situation.

Visit your doctor for a fever above 101.3°F (38.5°C) or lasting 5 days. 20. _____. Babies under the age of 12 weeks need medical care for a fever of 100.4°F (38.0°C) or greater.

If your symptoms don't seem to be going away in 7 days, then your infection could be worsening. It's best to see your doctor to make sure you're getting the proper treatment.

A. When to Seek Medical Treatment

B. Wash Your Hands Each Time You Blow Your Nose

C. And your body needs rest in order to heal faster, so go ahead and call in sick

D. For children under the age of 12, see a doctor if their fever lasts longer than 2 days

E. Getting plenty of rest, fluids, and nutrition will also allow your body to recover faster

F. Medicine may present side effects for pregnant women and people with low blood pressure

G. Doctors recommend that you blow by holding a finger over one nostril (鼻孔) and gently blowing the other into a tissue

My Perfect Imperfect Life

A few years ago, I was standing at the barre (扶手杠) waiting for my adult ballet class when I heard a voice behind me. "So, do you have this perfect life?"

My first reaction was to 21 who was being asked such an odd question. Then I remembered there were only two of us in the room. When I turned 22, the other woman was looking straight at me.

I had no idea how to answer it. Was she 23? Who has a perfect life? Sure, occasionally I did find the perfect dress or the perfect pair of shoes, 24 never would I use that word to describe anything about me or my life. I felt a twinge of guilt for somehow giving her that 25.

She watched me. I finally 26 to whisper a quick "No".

By then, the teacher had entered the room and turned on the music to start class. With a sigh of 27, I moved my feet into the best position. But as soon as my knees bent for our first pose, I realized my 28 had been disturbed. This woman's words wouldn't 29 echoing (回响) in my thoughts.

I wanted to know how she came up with her very mistaken 30. If she knew anything about my life, she never would have had the 31 to ask me that question.

I did my best to do our floor exercises in front of the mirror. For a few moments, I didn't see the usual 32 of my older self attempting to use a beautiful art form to 33 my gracefulness. I only saw the little girl whose father died when she was two, the child who walked home from elementary school every day to an empty house, who learned to sew her own clothes to 34 money.

Perfect. My life had been far from it.

When those memories 35, I was left with a vision of the woman I had become, the woman 36 by all those things I considered imperfect. I now saw the woman who had learned to be self-reliant, who 37 her family and her friends, who didn't take life for granted. Was that the "perfect" this woman had detected?

I still don't know, but I no longer feel 38 or feel like I must keep track of all the difficult times to prove my life isn't 39. If ever again asked whether my life is perfect, I would have a different 40. Because now I see that, despite all its imperfection, it is.

Flying a kite with my father is the most happiest memory in my childhood. I remember the day that I was running alongside my father. He held the kite string, waiting the kite to catch the wind. He slowed, handed me the string, and teach me how to hold it. “Don’t let go! Keep going!” he shouted. I kept running, out of breaths. Over and over I tried but failed. She told me not to give up. Eventually, I ran too fast that I made the kite fly highly in the air. Filling with excitement, I watched a kite dancing in the sky.
